

All dispatched operating systems are virtualized. Theoretically, one may install and configure his or her guest system to be dispatched as he or she wants. Practically, through the GUI, one can choose processor, amount of RAM, amount of disk space, partitions type and number and of course type of operating system, specific distros, desktop environments and so on.

{backbutton}